7. Cookies and Other Tracking Technologies

When you interact with our Sites and Applications, we strive to make your experience easy and meaningful. We and our service providers and third-party vendors use cookies, web beacons (including clear GIFs), Flash Local Storage Objects (“Flash LSOs”), and other similar technologies to track your activity and collect website and application data. We may combine this data with the personal information and sensitive personal information we have collected from you. Currently, our systems do not recognize browser “do-not-track” requests. You may, however, disable certain tracking as discussed in this section (e.g., by disabling cookies), but such disabling will impair use of the Sites and Applications.

Cookies. Cookies allow a web server to transfer data to a computer for recordkeeping and other purposes. We and our service providers and third-party vendors may use “cookies” on our Sites and Applications to, among other things, better serve you with tailored information and facilitate your ongoing access to and use of the Sites and Applications. We use session-based cookies, persistent cookies, and we also allow third party vendors to use cookies on our Sites and Applications.

- Session Cookies. Session cookies exist only during an online session. They disappear from your computer when you close your browser or turn off your computer. We use session cookies to allow our systems to uniquely identify you during a session or while you are logged in to the Sites and Applications. This allows us to process your online transactions and requests and verify your identity after you have logged in and as you move through our Sites and Applications.
- Persistent Cookies. Persistent cookies remain on your computer after you have closed your browser or turned off your computer. We use persistent cookies to track aggregate and statistical information about user activity, which may be combined with other user information.
- Third Party Cookies. We may also engage third-party vendors to track and analyze non-personal information, non-sensitive personal information, personal information, sensitive personal information, website data, and to serve advertisements. To do so, we may permit third-party vendors to apply cookies to users of our Sites and Applications, where permitted by law, and subject to your right to opt-out through the Network Advertising Initiative and About Ads (as discussed below). We use the data collected by such third-party vendors to help us administer and improve the quality of the Sites and Applications and to analyze site usage. Such third-party vendors may combine the information that we provide about you with other information that they have collected. These third-party vendors are required to use your information in accordance with this Policy.

Disabling Cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but if you prefer, you can edit your browser options to block them in the future. The “Help” portion of the toolbar on most browsers will tell you how to prevent your computer from accepting new cookies, how to have the browser notify you when you receive a new cookie, or how to disable cookies altogether. Visitors to our Sites and Applications who disable their web browsers’ ability to accept cookies will be able to browse the Sites and Applications; however, many site features, such as the shopping cart, will not function if you disable cookies. For more information on our cookies and opt-out features, please see our Cookies and Other Tracking Technologies statement in this section.

Local Storage Objects. We and our third-party service providers may use Flash LSOs in order to store your site preferences, to personalize your visit or to display content based upon what you view on our Sites. Flash LSOs are different from browser cookies because of the amount and type of data stored. In addition, you cannot control, delete or disable the acceptance of Flash LSOs through your browser. For more information on Flash LSOs, or to learn how to manage your settings for Flash cookies, go to the Adobe Flash Player Help Page, choose “Global Storage Settings Panel” and follow the instructions. To see the Flash LSOs currently on your computer, choose “Website Storage Settings Panel” and follow the instructions to review and, if you choose, to delete any specific Flash LSOs.

Web Beacons, Pixel Tags and Other Technologies. We may use web beacons, such as clear GIFs, web bugs or pixel tags, which are tiny graphics with a unique identifier similar in function to cookies. In contrast to cookies, which are stored on your computer’s hard drive, web beacons are embedded invisibly on web pages. We may use web beacons in connection with our Sites and Applications to, among other things, track the activities of visitors, help us manage content, and compile statistics about website usage. We and our service providers and third-party vendors also use web beacons in HTML e-mails to our customers to help us track e-mail response rates, measure the success of our marketing campaigns, identify when our e-mails are viewed and track whether our e-mails are forwarded. For more information on the types of such tracking technologies we use, please see our Cookies and Other Tracking Technologies statement in this section.

Product Analytics. We use automated devices and applications, such as Google Analytics, Firebase, and Adobe Analytics (collectively “data analytics tools”, to evaluate usage of our Sites and Applications. We also may use other analytic means to evaluate our Sites and Applications. We use these tools to help us improve our Sites and Applications, performance, and user experiences. These tools may use cookies and other tracking technologies to perform their services. We do not share your personal information or sensitive personal information with these third-parties.

Third-Party Ad Networks. We may use third-party vendors such as network advertisers to serve advertisements on our Sites and Applications. Please see the section entitled “Advertisements” for additional information about our practices and your choices with regard to receiving such advertisements.

Advertisements. We display advertisements on our Sites and Applications. Some of the advertisements may be based on the collection of personal information, sensitive personal information, and other information based on the collection of aggregate information. Please see the bottom of this section for opt-out information.

We use third-party vendors such as network advertisers to serve advertisements on our Sites and Applications. Network advertisers are third-party vendors that display advertisements based on your visits to our Sites and Applications and other websites and applications you have visited. This tool enables us and these third-party vendors to target advertisements to you for products and services in which you might be interested. Third party ad network providers, advertisers, sponsors, and/or traffic measurement services may use cookies, JavaScript, web beacons (including clear GIFs), Flash LSOs, and other technologies to measure the effectiveness of their ads and to personalize advertising content to you.

These third party cookies and other technologies are governed by each third party’s specific privacy policy, not this one. We may provide these third-party advertisers with information about your usage of our Sites and Applications and our services, including personal information, sensitive personal information, non-personal information, and non-sensitive personal information.

You may opt-out of many third-party ad networks. The Network Advertising Initiative (“NAI”) website <https://thenai.org/opt-out/browser-opt-out/> provides information regarding browser opt-outs, and your choices regarding having this information used by these companies, including how to “opt-out” of third- party advertising networks operated by NAI members. You also may contact About Ads at <http://www.aboutads.info/choices/> for information about opting out of targeted advertising and your choices regarding having information used by About Ads member companies, including how to “opt-out” of third-party advertising networks operated by About Ads members. Opting out of one or more NAI members or About Ad members (many of which will be the same) only means that those members will no longer deliver targeted content or advertisements to you, but it does not mean you will no longer receive any targeted content or advertisements on our Sites and Applications or other websites and applications. You may continue to receive advertisements, for example, based on the particular website that you are viewing. Also, if your browsers are configured to reject cookies when you visit an opt-out page, or you subsequently erase your cookies, use a different computer, or change web browsers, then your NAI or About Ad opt-out may no longer be effective. Additional information is available on NAI’s and About Ad’s websites and applications accessible by the above links.

We regularly review our security procedures to consider appropriate new technology and methods. Please be aware though that, despite our best efforts, no security measures are perfect or impenetrable.

10. Data Transfers, Storage, and Processing

If you are located outside of the United States, please note that personal information and sensitive personal information we collect about you will be transferred to and processed in the United States. In addition, you will see links on the Pac-12.com website to individual Pac-12 member institution websites or mobile applications. Each of those individual websites or applications are separately operated and maintained and governed by their own privacy policies. We are not responsible for the information and privacy practices of these Pac-12 member institutions websites and applications. In addition, certain streaming services offered through our Sites and Applications require you to register with your third-party TV provider. Any information you provide to register for such services is subject to the privacy policies of such third-party services; we are not responsible for their information and privacy practices.

12. Privacy Policy Changes

From time to time, we may change and update this Policy to accommodate new services, Sites, Applications, technologies, industry practices, regulatory requirements, laws, or for other purposes. We will post such changes and updates on the Sites and Applications, and, where feasible, notify users through the Sites, Applications and email addresses provided to us.
